A STRANGE STORY.

Sensational Divorce Bill Filed at the Chancery Court-A Tale of Love, Desertion, Sin and Property-What is Modern Civilization Coming to?

At the chancery court a startling bill was filed yesterday. It was styled, Angelo Marre vs. R. A. Parker, administrator of Vincent intermarried with Jennie Marre, formerly Jennie Bacigalupo, the marriage being sol-emnized at Little Rock by a bishop of the Roman Catholic church. They lived togeth-$847,140 er until a month ago, when his said wife left his house at Little Rock and went to Fort Smith, Arkansas, and refused to return. He went to Fort Smith, but could not see her. She carried off about three thousand dollars worth of diamonds belonging to complainant, but he believes she was induced so to do by some evil-disposed or designing person. Complainant states that one James Brizzolari, now residing at Fort Smith, Arkansas, and uncle of said Jennie Marre, some five or six years ago, while she was a minor of the age of fifteen years, stealthily abducted his said niece Jennie, the wife of complainant, against the knowledge or consent of her parents, ran away with her, and had been living in open adultery with her as his wife up to within a short period of the marriage of com-plainant with her. Complainant, a short time since, went to Fort Smith and demanded that said Jennie Marre return with him; but said James Brizzolari by an armed force prevented it, and complainant was forced to return home to Memphis. Brizzolari had taken complainant's wife to his house at Fort Smith and had employed a force of men to guard him and prevent complainant from great as to prevent her returning to his home; omplainant does not want a divorce; comand the city, and being anxious to effect a settlement of this vexed question.

It is proposed, and the German national bank of Memphis has consented to act as agent and trustee without charge to the parties, that the holders of the bonds paying sarin and some two hundred thousand dollars: that his
